-should be sharp and in good condition. If you bought a box of tools you would want one containing a complete assortment, and with edged tools which would cut.

It is somewhat the same with advertising. If you select a newspaper with which to do your advertising work you will have better success if you select that paper with the largest and most varied circulation, and which presents the best opportunity of having your ad read.

THE WASHINGTON HERALD is read by all sorts and conditions of people, reaching a total of about 150,000 readers, and reaching nearly all of them in their homes. The readers of this paper have all day in which to get down to the small ads, after reading the news and the big ads-consequently, your small ad would be read, and you would get results.

One saw that will cut is better than a dozen that won't-one ad that is read is better than a million that are not read.
